ANN AND GORDON GETTY HOST UCSF BENEFIT

Children's laughter filled the Pacific Heights manse of philanthropists Ann and Gordon Getty at the annual Snuggly Soirée they co-hosted with friends Pam and Dr. Richard Glogau in March.

The event raised over $200,000 for the Glogau Teddy Bear Rescue Fund at the University of California San Francisco's (UCSF) Children's Hospital.

The festoons of blue and white balloons hung from the front door gave a hint of what a good time was in store.

Ann and Gordon Getty hosted the benefit for the Glogau Teddy Bear Rescue Fund at the University of California San Francisco's (UCSF) Children's Hospital.

For years, the chatelaine and interior decorator Ann Getty has generously shared her Williams Polk mansion for many causes.

I was stunned that she gave more than three hundred children, parents, and grandparents run of the house, which is filled with museum-quality antiques, furniture, and paintings. I assume it's because she is used to having her four sons and her grandchildren around!

Beth Townsend, Pamela Glogau, Dr. Richard Glogau, and Ann Getty.

The interior courtyard was transformed into a kiddie carnival where children were delighted by storytelling, games and other activities.

Face painting amused the junior set.

Throughout the home, stations overflowed with kid-pleasers like mini-burgers, pizza, cotton candy, and ice-cream cones. (There were also plenty of adults hovering around a table heaped with candy in every shape and flavor.)

Heather Hoover and Kim Murphy handed departing guests gift bags stuffed with beauty products and a plush throw from Restoration Hardware, based in the Bay area.

GIANTS BASEBALL TEAM OPENING DAY at AT&T Park

In 2010, the San Francisco Giants won the World Series Championship. The town demonstrated its pride with parades and citywide celebrations.

AT&T Park, downtown home of the San Francisco Giants, has breathtaking views of the bay. I don't think many people stayed at work on Friday the 13th—which turned out to be a lucky day for the Giants. They trounced the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-0 in front of a joyous stadium crowd.
